RPET

- PET is the most common type of plastic, mostly used for packaging and singleuse disposable bottles / containers
- A large part of the solid waste in the world is attributed to PET packaging
- Recycled PET is known as RPET. PET is the most widely recycled plastic in the world
- The use of RPET gives a new life to an already made product in place of virgin materials results in reduced environmental impact
- RPET is commonly used across our merchandise range. It can be found in products such as cables, bottles, speakers, backpacks, clothing and much more!
- RPET can even be recycled further meaning your product can avoid landfill once again

Recycled Fabrics

- Recycled fabrics are made from waste fabrics (any textiles)
- Collected textile solid wastes are reprocessed to fibre and then back to fabrics for further re-production of products such as bags, garments, or linen
- Most of the manufactures work with two streams: pre-consumer waste (scrap from production) and post-consumer waste (used textiles collected)
- The colour segregation occurs during the process to avoid the re-dyeing of the fabric

Rab Men's Downpour Jacket

Built from recycled 2.5-layer Pertex® Revolve fabric with a fluorocarbon-free DWR treatment, it is our first ever mono-polymer waterproof jacket. Hemp

- Hemp is one of the oldest and most eco-friendly textile fabrics
- It is made from fibres of the fast-growing cannabis plant. The plant is naturally pest resistant and can grow without the assistance of fertilisers or pesticides.
- It's a 100% organic crop and therefore very environmentally friendly
- The production process of the hemp fibres is a very sustainable one and these organic fibres are 100% recyclable
- So far, we have toiletry bags, drawstring bags, shopper bags, baseball caps and aprons in our hemp merchandise range. Although, we are sure we'll see more products in this material over the coming months!

Organic Cotton

- Organic cotton is equal to cotton with the difference that it is naturally grown without the use of any pesticides, herbicides, fertilisers, or any other chemical
- To know for sure that the cotton is indeed organic, manufactures go through extensive supply chain verification by third parties and only certified cotton can be marketed
- The number of organic cotton farms is increasing vastly, however they still count for a very small part of overall cotton production worldwide
- Many of our eco clothing options and reusable bags are available in organic cotton
